VIDYA SAGAR

Vidya Sagar was founded in 1985 by Poonam Natarajan in a garage with just three students. Growing from there, Vidya Sagar today works with more than 3,000 people in any given year, on disabilities that range from cerebral palsy and autism to learning disabilities and mental illness.

The bottomline for Vidya Sagar is 'inclusion' -- including students with disabilities into regular schools, including disabled people into mainstream society, including disability issues into law, architecture, public transport etc. Vidya Sagar works to get the issue of disability recognised and addressed holistically by society, government and individuals.

Vidya Sagar raises money for its work through grants, donations, card sales and fundraisers such as Sadya.

About SADYA

An event that will make you feel good. And help us reach higher.

Sadya is an annual adventure event where companies pay Rs 3 lakh to field a team of 10 participants. These teams are hosted by Vidya Sagar in a lovely campsite for two action-packed days. Adventure Zone, the city's leading outward-bound HR training company, organises the event. Participants are put through activities like rock-climbing, rappelling, obstacle course, caterpillar race, and other esoteric games. The team that shows the best brain-brawn combo evidently walks away with the trophy, which is a glorious multi-metal sculpture especially created for Sadya by famous sculptor Nandagopal.

Apart from being a great incentive for your best employees, Sadya is also an excellent informal HR exercise. Participants learn teamwork, leadership skills, crisis management and communication.

Then, there are the various awards for teamwork, leadership, zest etc, plus exciting gift hampers sponsored by various companies, ranging from air tickets to restaurant
